

Simple Stuff Words of Wisdom

by Bob Vitrikas

Those of you who watched the BBC TV series “Top Gear” have no doubt developed an opinion of Jeremy Clarkson. If you haven’t watched “Top Gear” then you need to!

“Colin Chapman summed up his philosophy thus: 'Simplify and add lightness.' Mind you, he also said, 'You would never catch me driving a race car that I have built.' Which probably explains why Lotus came to be known as an acronym for Lots Of Trouble, Usually Serious.”

Clarkson is known for his memorable musings. Indeed he has published a couple of books full of them, including “Diddly Squat,” and “What Could Possibly Go Wrong.”

Here are three Clarkson gems to whet your appetite.

“I’m sorry, but having an Aston Martin DB9 on the drive and not driving it is a bit like having Keira Knightley in your bed and sleeping on the couch.”

“You’re a car, but most of all, what you are, what you’ve become, is a mate. And that’s what makes a car special. That’s what makes a car great. You start to think of it as a person. You start to love it.”

AMEN!
